

■ FontForm

`FontForm[expr, "fontname", size]` requests that expr be printed in the specified font and relative size.

`FontForm` is used primarily for text included in graphics. ■ The font name in `FontForm` is used in the PostScript form of expr. Most PostScript rendering systems translate the specifications into ones appropriate for the particular output device being used. ■ The font size is specified in points. ■ Typical font names are "Plain", "Bold" and "Italic". ■ See page 281. ■ See also: `Text`, `PlotLabel`.